At Avtrade we relieve the burden of surplus simply and efficiently, by managing the whole process of storing, marketing and moving your components, which helps to relieve pressure on your staff and valuable warehousing space.

We can purchase your surplus or store and market it on your behalf, with the facility of rapid recall if you need the item for your own aircraft. We use our vast expertise to suggest the most suitable approach for your needs and inventory composition.

Our management fee covers every stage of finding surplus components a home, from providing access to our extensive global customer base to marketing your material using a host of trusted and effective platforms.

Your dedicated Account Manager will monitor your components every step of the way, providing regular status reports and analysing inventory to identify where value might be increased by recertification or repair.

At Avtrade we pride ourselves on creating strong, mutually beneficial bonds with all of our partners, and our Surplus Management service is no exception.
